only-second street. They saw a short, middle-aged man shaking his hat under the nose of a tall, dignified individual, very dapper and wearing a small black imperial streaked with gray.

The tall man was Edmund G. Ga-launer, sometimes known as "Count" Galauner, who is said to be a Hungarian nobleman and who was arrested last evening in the apartments of the Hotel Plaza after a surety company had surrendered the bond on which he had been at liberty since September, 1911, when he was indicted in Brooklyn on three counts of grand larceny in the second degree growing out of alleged swindling operations.
Detective Hughes was conducting him to Headquarters from the West One Hundred and Fifty-second street station, where he had passed an unhappy night in a cell.

"You swindler, you robber! Oh, you thief!" shrieked the little man.
"I've been looking for you for four years. Where is that $1 you swindled me out of?"

He tried to hit Galauner, but Hughes protected his prisoner. Questioning the little man, the detective learned that he was a waiter who had once advanced $1 to Galauner to cover the cost of a dinner.

PARDON: IT WAS AN OVERSIGHT ON THE COUNT'S PART.

"It was an oversight," said Galauner calmly. "It slipped my mind. I must reimburse this good fellow," and he coolly took out a note book and entered the debt.

Galauner took his arrest last night calmly. Detectives Hughes and Finan found him in the Princess's suite after Father Frolich of St. Stephen's Catholic Church, Fourteenth street and First avenue, who had been instrumental in getting bail for him, notified Inspector Faurot that the surety company desired the surrender of the bond, saving heard that Galauner was preparing to leave the country. The detectives knocked at a door of the Princess's apartment on the third floor of the Plaza and pushed past a butler who opened it.
They found Galauner seated at the foot of a throne on which the Princess, beautifully gowned and covered with jewels, was seated in state.
Galauner was vastly indignant when the detectives made themselves known, and the Princess, much perturbed, was anxious to help her guest. Later her secretary arrived and she talked with the detectives and then announced firmly:

"We must not interfere with the police."
PRINCESS DECIDES NOT TO GO ON COUNT'S BAIL.

Hughes asked if the Princess would arrange bail for Galauner, as he wished in this case to notify her that Galauner would be taken to the West
One Hundred and Fifty-second street station instead of Headquarters, as the station is near the home of Inspector Faurot, who wanted to question the man about alleged swindles.
The secretary consulted the Princess in Hungarian and then announced:
"No one here will arrange for bail."

The indictments against Galauner are based on testimony of John Pirkel, Henry Hochrath and Harvey S. Otis, the first two of whom said that they each had paid $75 and Otis $45 to Galauner on his representation that he was the architect of a big business building in Manhattan, had the letting of contracts, and would give them the iron work, the electric work and the carpentering.

Father Frolich was excited when he learned of Galauner's arrest. The priest is an old man. He exclaimed angrily:

PRIEST CALLS HIM A CHEAT AND AN IMPOSTOR.

"I want nothing more to do with that man. He is a cheat and an impostor. He comes of one of the oldest and best families in Hungary.
They are very wealthy. He is a fine architect and could win a great name for himself. Instead he prefers to be a swindler and a cheat. I did not go on his bond; I simply gave him a recommendation as a good Catholic, for he attended my church for three years and was regular at the confessional. I was deceived in him. When I found that the surety company considered that I had gone on his bond I authorized them to withdraw it."

How the "Count" became acquainted with the Princess is not known to the police. She is a Hungarian, possessed of large means. She travels much and far, taking with her several alligators, dogs, parrots, a baby lion or two and also at least seven servants. She is a portrait painter of international reputation, and has put European monarchs and New York society folk on canvas.
Galauner is about fifty-three years old, tall and good looking. He has a studio at No. 2 West Thirty-third street.

Galauner was arraigned before Judge Dike in the County Court, Brooklyn, and having no other bail to offer was remanded to the Raymond Street Jail. His trial was set for April 3.

SENATOR CLARK WINS.

Has Lead to Date in Democratic Primary in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 27.—The count in the Democratic primary election, as reported to-day, gave United States Senator James P. Clark 53,332 votes. His opponent for the nomination, William F. Kirby, had 54,746. It is estimated that 25,000 votes have not yet been reported.

The nomination of J. N. Tillman of Payetteville as representative in Congress from the Third District has been conceded.

Boy of Four Is Killed by Wagon.
As little John McCreery, a child of four, ran heedlessly from behind a northbound Second avenue car this afternoon he was knocked down and killed by a wagon of the Eagle Wet Wash Company of No. 425 East Thirteenth street. The accident, which happened in front of the boy's home, No.
345 Second avenue, was declared by many witnesses to be no fault of John Curran, the driver of the wagon, so he was not arrested.

LIFE'S ENDURANCE TEST.
(From the London Globe.)
Life is more or less of a walking endurance match, beginning with the chance which ends with the announcement of an engagement. After marriage a man and his wife have just about finished waiting all night with the last sickly baby who may begin walking until midnight waiting for the oldest boy to turn in or for daughter's beau to make his final farewell.

"Household Hints"

House-makers are constantly complaining that they have no time to take care of themselves.

Take the average woman of the house, her complexion is sallow and lifeless, heavy lines show in her face, and her hands are red, rough and coarse.

No woman who values her happiness can allow herself to "go to seed" and look older than she is.

Just a little time every day, and the regular directions carefully.

When you get up in the morning, arrange your face and hands, dry your face lightly. While they are still damp rub a little Vaseline in thoroughly.
Then with a dry towel wipe off what the skin has not absorbed.

Before going to bed at night bathe the face and hands in warm water, dry off most of the moisture. Then rub a more generous quantity of Vaseline on the face and hands, take a dry towel and wipe off lightly.

You will find a day's use makes an improvement—a week's regular use a wonderful difference.
